

Secure and Private communication through your trusted friends

Vilhelm Verendel
Department of Computer Science and Engineering
Chalmers University of Technology

SWITS 2009

This talk will present a method to achieve efficient global routing in a social network where participants have only local information. This may give participants security and privacy under an assumption of trusted friends. I will mention some applications in crisis communication and overlay networks.